President's Comments

Lively discussions continue to be the encouraged norm, with about 18 people attending our Annual Meeting which is also the first meeting of 2002! As I reviewed the past years activities, I was reminded about the social aspect of our organization. We do some business, yet have time to help
each other through the relationships at coffee time.

Your leadership team for 2002 is identified on page two of the newsletter. Thanks to the members of the Nominations committee for helping with this task. We look forward to a SUPER bunch of people to lead
the RRAA's Thirty Ninth year.

During our business session, we reported our bank balance has dropped slightly to retain a surplus of $2704. An outstanding cheque of $320 is subtracted from the Dec.
31st, 2001 balance of $3024 to give the $2704 in the financial report. Options to offset the net loss of $253, such as increasing fees, did not get much of a response. If you have some ideas for the executive, please let us know. By the way I gave out some incorrect information at the meeting, sorry for that. In our Research category, $500 went to Rob Currie (given at picnic), and the remainder to the Barry Fingler Fund.

The Executive met to plan the next few meetings. Education is still high on our priority list. The usual items of medication and management will be considered. Please feel free to let us know of your favourite topic.

NOTE: THE NEXT MEETING HAS BEEN MOVED BACK TO FEBRUARY 19.

Hopefully many of you will have been able to attend the Manitoba Beekeepers Association Convention on February 11 & 12, 2002, at the Victoria Inn, Brandon. Lots of great topics planned. The panel discussion is always interesting also. The group agreed to delay our meeting as several would be in Brandon on Tuesday, and may not return to Winnipeg in time for our regular 7:30 p.m. meeting. Thanks for the postponement.

There was a suggestion to include the costs for joining MBA in our newsletter. Be sure to see the insert. Any one can join for basic fee of $50 plus colony fee. If you don't care about voting, the fee is $25.

Our favorite past time is fast approaching--- TAX Time. I do my preparations on a program called "Quick Tax". This program includes sheets for both Farming and other Business. I love the planning tool which lets me see tax figures for various options I am considering .

A copy of the new book "Prairie Gold" was displayed at our last meeting. This is available for $42.95 at Bee Maid. It looks good with lots of pictures of beekeeping from the past 50 years.

Red River Apiarists' Association
Minutes of the Regular Meeting
November 13, 2001

The regular meeting of the Red River Apiarists' Association was held at the River Heights Community Club on November 13, 2001. Jim Campbell called the meeting to order at 7:30 PM.

Minutes:

Jim Campbell reviewed the minutes of the previous regular meeting.

Celebration Evening:

Red River Apiarists' Association marks its 38th year: Jim Campbell reminded the members and guests that 2001 is our 38th year of meeting as an association. Walter Wright was one of our founding members and still is active in beekeeping. Walter has held many positions in the organization. Walter and his wife, Zelda, are always present at meetings, field trips and social events. Everyone enjoyed coffee and cake while we looked at Jim's photographs of our activities for 2001. It was a busy and enjoyable year.

Ted Scheuneman detailed his experience with sending a colony of bees by air to Great Bear Lake in June of 2001. The bees worked long days and produced some surplus honey from this far northern region.

Nominating Committee:

Our nomination committee is comprised of Rhéal Lafrenière, Brian Schewfelt, Gilles Lantagne and Fred Jones. Anyone wanting to participate on the executive committee is requested to contact one of the election committee members. Nominations from the floor may be made as well.

Canadian Honey Council:

The annual meeting of CAPA and the CHC will be held in Banff, Alberta Jan. 31 - Feb. 2, 2002

MBA Annual General Meeting:

The annual general meeting will be held on Monday, Nov. 26, 2001 at the Polo Park Canad Inn. The meeting agenda was discussed.

Whereas: The RRAA is concerned about the continued health of honey bee stocks in Canada, therefore, be it resolved that the RRAA support the continuation of the present status of the border closure for the importation of bees and/or packages from the USA mainland. Moved by Charles Polcyn, seconded by Walter Wright. Motion was carried (none opposed).

Suggested Meeting topics for 2002:

Control of AFB without chemicals as is done in many parts of the world.
Beekeeping information exchange (bull session).

Ron Rudiak (Secretary - RRAA)

Red River Apiarists' Association
Minutes of the Regular Meeting
January 8, 2002

The regular meeting of the Red River Apiarists' Association was held at the River Heights Community Club on January 8, 2002. Jim Campbell called the meeting to order at 7:30 PM with 17 members and guests present.

Ron Rudiak reviewed the minutes of the November 13 regular meeting. Rhéal Lafrenière noted that Gilles Lantagne's name was omitted from the list of persons on the nominating committee. The minutes were accepted with correction noted.

Committee Reports:

Annual Report, 2001 in review:

Jim Campbell presented a slide show on the RRAA activities for 2001. Included in our activities were regular meetings, newsletter, May field day with presentations on wintering, spring management, pest resistance, disease control, research projects, queen rearing and remote hive monitoring and lunch.

Jim noted that many persons asked questions about bee activities, and the health benefits of natural hive products. Photos showed several persons who attended from the media and St. Vital Shopping Centre management as baking judges and participants in the honey tasting contest. Rhéal Lafrenière coordinated the judging of honey baked items.

Three vendors were on hand to sell colorful containers of various types of honey to eager shoppers. The RRAA had two tall colorful signs made with large lettering to promote honey. The concerns of the members of the RRAA are similar to those of commercial beekeepers with larger numbers of colonies, profitability, research, health of the industry, wintering, disease prevention etc.

Other Happenings:

The minutes are regularly included in the Bee Cause as well as all Honey Show winners. Score sheets are provided to contestants for each entry submitted. Planning ahead a year in advance. It was suggested that the RRAA include an application in the Bee Cause for membership in the Manitoba Beekeepers' Association.

"Prairie Gold - The First 60 Years of Manitoba Co-Operative Honey Producers" a history book that was three years in the making is now available from the Honey Co-Op for $42.95.

Nominating Committee:

Rhéal Lafrenière gave the report for the nominating committee. The following persons agreed to let their names stand for election:

President - Jim Campbell

1st Vice President - Rhéal Lafrenière

2nd Vice President - Gilles Lantagne

Treasurer - Dennis Ross

Secretary - Ron Rudiak

Newsletter - Doug Henry

Reporter - Ron Rudiak

MBA Representative - Jim Campbell

Rhéal Lafrenière called for further nominations for each position. There were no further nominations. Moved by Walter Wright that nominations close, seconded by Herb Schon. Carried. The nominees were declared elected.

Financial Report:

Dennis Ross circulated copies of the yearly financial statement for 2001. Moved by Dennis and seconded by Emil Rekrut that we accept the report as presented. Carried. The Loonie Draw proceeds totaled $15.00.

The winner of the screened bottom board from Ted Scheuneman was Murray Porter. The wall plaque from Jim Campbell was won by Ron Rudiak and the camera from Jim was won by Emil Rekrut.

February meeting:

Because Feb. 12 would conflict with the MBA meeting in Brandon the date of our next regular meeting was changed to Feb. 19 (same location).

Meeting adjourned at 8:00 PM

Program:

A queen survey and questionnaire was circulated. A summary of the results will be available in a future issue of the Bee Cause.

Dennis reported several members were already paying 2002 membership. He provided a copy of last year's membership to be sent to Doug Henry for update to the mailing list.

February General Meeting:

Jim noted our membership agreed to delay the meeting until February 19. It is important to get the newsletter out in time to avoid anyone showing up on the regular date of Feb. 12. The group agreed that spring feeding and medication is required again. Rhéal agreed to contact John Delinski to speak to our group. He has written several books on beekeeping, and could talk on Pollen and Propolis collecting. Rhéal could lead the meeting, as Jim will be out of town. Dennis Ross will notify the River Heights Community Club of our meeting dates for 2002.

March General Meeting:

Rhéal agreed to give a presentation on Spring Management.

For the good of the Association:

As identified at the Annual meeting, we should demonstrate support for MBA by including an ad of their membership rates. We could also ask MBA members to speak to us. i.e. Art Bergman - NISA/AIDA, Paul Gregory - pollination in the USA, Phil Veldhuis - candles, Dale Willard - farmers market tips, etc. The group discussed the fact that some of our members have been doing private research that could benefit all beekeepers. Presentation at some future meeting.

Motion 02-01:

That RRAA contribute $100.00 to Ted Scheuneman in support of his beekeeping research. Carried.

Honey of an idea launched through Food Development Centre

BY Jodi Ferguson

Manfred Villing has a honey of an idea.

The Winnipeg inventor and entrepreneur knew if he could combine the delectable flavour of honey with the smooth, spreadable consistency of butter, he could revolutionize the breakfast-spread industry. But much like oil and water, honey and butter do not mix without a lot of hard work and coaxing. And that's where the technical staff at the Food Development Centre came in.

"I was tired. I was disappointed. I was spending thousands of dollars. I needed to find a place for acceptance," says Villing, President of Wittmann Foods International Inc. "I found the right place finally."

Villing, 57, says he immediately felt at home with the qualified staff at the Food Development Centre. At a technical and laboratory level, they helped him with research and development he would not have been able to carry out on his own. The Centre was also instrumental in helping him gain access to the Manitoba Milk Marketing Board and a major honey producer for the raw products he needed.

Villing has had a diverse career. His first job as a boy in his native Germany was working in his father's bakeshop, decorating cakes and making gingerbread men. Later, he studied and was employed in window dressing and interior design. After coming to Canada in 1961, he applied his considerable creative abilities to residential construction. But his entrepreneurial mind was always coming up with new ideas for products that would one day hit the market. One of those ideas was a patented easy-pour spout for milk and juice boxes.

His heart never strayed far from the food industry where he started forty years earlier, and he became interested in developing and marketing a breakfast spread consisting of the two delicious tastes of honey and butter. The concept had been tried years ago in Europe with little success. Villing felt that the product had potential, if only he could get the two key ingredients to combine without risk of separating.

He began experimenting in his kitchen at home and then brought a sample to the University of Manitoba's food science department for testing. In the meantime, he performed further research and educated himself by taking courses in dairy science. What he discovered strengthened his resolve: Canada has an abundance of both butter and honey and Villing knew it would be no problem to find excellent quality raw ingredients for his product.

Then fate intervened. Seven years ago a professor at the University of Manitoba introduced Villing to a consultant at what was then the National Agri-Food Technology Centre (NAFTC) in Portage la Prairie. Villing welcomed the suggestion to bring his fledgling product out to the Centre, now FDC, for further testing and development. And Villing has never looked back.

The food product consultants and pilot plant technicians at FDC faced major challenges in helping Villing develop his honey butter product. First, they had to find an effective binding agent to keep the honey and butter together and give the product a shelf life of at least six months. Next, they had to figure out a way of preventing the honey from crystallizing. Villing also was committed to maintaining the product's high quality taste, consistency and nutritional value while using the least amount of preservatives.

One of Villing's first moves was to launch a marketing survey to gauge the consumer perception of a honey butter spread. Villing has traveled frequently to trade shows, handing out samples of his honey butter, and the reaction has been extremely positive. Because of the way it is processed, the honey butter is lower in fat than regular butter and combines with the natural goodness of Manitoba produced honey.

The refrigerated version of the honey butter is now complete and will be shelved with products like butter and cream cheese in the dairy section of grocery stores. Along with food product consultants at FDC, Villing is now working to perfect a shelf-stable version of the honey butter that he is hoping to export. The product will be located in grocery store aisles with other spreads such as peanut butter and jams.

In addition to the original honey butter flavour, Villing and the FDC product development staff have been experimenting with variations, including strawberry, banana and lemon honey butters.

Despite the myriad challenges in launching a new food product to the general public, Villing expects to see Wittmann's Original Honey Butter on grocery store shelves by autumn of this year. He also hopes to launch the shelf-stable version in such distant locales as Chile and Brazil and he welcomes help exporting the product.

Now that Wittmann's honey butter is ready to make its debut, Villing will have to find a place to produce it. He is considering a facility close to FDC in Portage la Prairie.

I noticed a few dead bees on top of the snow in front of my hives, so I know there are a few still alive in there. Hopefully yours are doing well too.

A Beekeeping Joke

A beekeeper was driving from his farm to bee yard. His truck got hit by a lawyer's sports car.

The lawyer saw that the beekeeper was really upset. "Here," he said, "Have a swig of some whiskey I've got in the trunk." The beekeeper took a long drink, handed the bottle back to the lawyer.

"No thanks," said the lawyer, "I won't drink anything until after the police have been here."
